MEREDITH JASON NAMED DEPUTY ASSISTANT GENERAL COUNSEL FOR APPELLATE AND SUPREME COURT LITIGATION BRANCH

National Labor Relations Board General Counsel Ronald Meisburg announced the appointment of Meredith Jason as Deputy Assistant General Counsel of the Appellate and Supreme Court Litigation Branch in the Division of Enforcement Litigation. Ms. Jason has been a Supervisory Attorney in the Branch for eight years.

The Appellate and Supreme Court Litigation Branch is responsible for conducting federal court litigation involving the enforcement and review of the orders of the National Labor Relations Board as well as the NLRB's litigation in the Supreme Court of the United States. The Branch assists the Divisions and Offices supervised by the General Counsel in litigating important issues. The Branch also advises the General Counsel and the Members of the Board concerning the litigating positions that the Agency should take in Supreme Court cases and works closely with the U. S. Department of Justice, Office of the Solicitor General, in formulating the government's position before the Supreme Court.

A native of Greenwich, CT, Ms. Jason received her B.A. degree, cum laude, in 1987 from Boston University, where she majored in Sociology. She received her J.D. degree, summa cum laude, in 1991 from the American University, Washington College of Law. After law school, Ms. Jason clerked for Judge Ronald P. Wertheim of the Superior Court of the District of Columbia and then spent two years in private practice. Ms. Jason began her NLRB career in 1995 working in the Division of Enforcement Litigation, Appellate Court Branch. She was promoted to Supervisory Attorney in 2001.

The National Labor Relations Board is an independent federal agency vested with the power to safeguard employees' rights to organize and to determine whether to have unions as their bargaining representative. The agency also acts to prevent and remedy unfair labor practices committed by private sector employers and unions.
